A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY
OF MRS. MARTHA J. MIZE

In the journey of life there are many scenes of different nature, of sadness and joy. So has been the experiences of the subject of this sketch.

Once we thought the saddest thing that could come to the human family was for a mother to be taken and leave her small children, but one never gets to where in life they do not need the council of mother. The loss of this good mother to her children was the chief thought of her children and family as they attended her funeral at Old Rock Prairie and as they laid her weary body to rest in the silent tomb, many remembrances of the past were brought to our minds anew. Shes goes to her long sleep with the sweetest memory stayed in the minds of all who knew her, without her name being sung by the popular singer of the day, and without her name being flashed across the pages of the great newspapers, but she leaves to her family a name more sacred than all these—that of a noble consecrated mother and wife whose every thought was for the comfort of her family.

Every boy and girl she has left to mourn her going bears the marks of noble manhood and womanhood in their dealings with their fellowmen and prize above everything the good name they have made wherever they have lived.

Her last words were a prayer for her loved ones wherein she prayed: "Dear Jesus watch over my precious baby for me, I can not do it any longer. I have done all for them I can do. Tell Jim to be good to the Savior; Dear Jesus guard all our children and make them to know thou art the way to peace."

The memory of Mrs. Mize will linger with her children as long as they shall live and the tender advice will be a guiding star to their lives throughout all the years. Her aged husband has lost a companion who has been true and faithful all the years, bearing every sorrow and hardship as well as every joy that has
